Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 30 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Low cloud drifting inland overnight. Mainly dry and warm Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A dry night with clear spells most likely in the west. Low cloud initially on the coast spreading inland from the North Sea through the evening and into the early hours. Feeling chilly in some rural spots by dawn. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Monday:
A fine Bank Holiday Monday with much of the region experiencing long spells of warm sunshine. Any early low cloud clearing back to the coast where it will feel cooler. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Warm and dry with sunny spells Tuesday and much of Wednesday. Overnight low cloud burning back to the coast by day. Occasionally heavy rain overnight into Thursday, then feeling fresher.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.